LATIN AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF ZOOS AND AQUARIUMS

ABOUT ALPZA

Latin America houses over thirty percent of the world's species and three of the top countries with the most bird, amphibian, mammal, reptile, fish and plant life in the world.

The Latin American Association of Zoos and Aquariums (ALPZA) gathers the most prestigious and influential zoological institutions and professionals in Latin America and the Caribbean. Its goal is to facilitate the collaboration among its members, in order to promote their integral development, while maintaining the highest standards in animal welfare, environmental education, sustainability, conservation and safety. ALPZA is also the Latin American representative in the World Association of Zoos and Aquariums (WAZA).

MISION

We are a platform that promotes the integral development of its members, and inspires to obtain the highest impact on biodiversity conservation, integrating the efforts of the Latin American region to global conservation goals.

VISION

To ensure the conservation of the Latin American biodiversity, harmoniously integrating humans with nature.

STRATEGIC GOALS

- To promote strategies for the integral development of our members.
- To positively impact on Latin American biodiversity conservation.
- To guarantee the long-term viability of wildlife populations within Latin American zoos and aquariums.

STRUCTURE OF ALPZA

ALPZA has a Board of Directors represented by professionals from different countries who are elected by its members. The strength of the association comes from the very diverse members that compose it, as well as several Committees, and an Executive Office based in Santiago, Chile.

WHY BECOME AN ASSOCIATE MEMBER OF ALPZA?
